Mason Global Antitrust Institute Launches Competition Advocacy Program

Earlier today, the Global Antitrust Institute (GAI) at George Mason University School of Law launched its Competition Advocacy Program (CAP) and submitted its first comment to an international competition authority.

The comment responds to China's NDRC's Questionnaire on Intellectual Property Misuse Antitrust Guidelines and provides a wide range of recommendations aimed to facilitate adoption of economically sound competition policy, including how to analyze conduct involving standard-essential patents and non-practicing entities.

GAI is a leading international platform for research and education that focuses on the legal and economic analysis of key antitrust issues confronting competition agencies and courts around the world. The Director of the GAI is Professor of Law Joshua D. Wright, former U.S. Federal Trade Commissioner.

The GAI's International Board of Advisors is chaired by the Honorable Douglas H. Ginsburg, a Senior Judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia and a Professor of Law at George Mason University School of Law. Bruce H. Kobayashi is a GAI Senior Scholar and Founding Director, and a Professor of Law. Koren W. Wong-Ervin, a former Attorney Advisor to then-Federal Trade Commissioner Joshua D. Wright, is also an author of the comment.
