Laurie C. Self

Senior Vice President & Counsel, Government Affairs Qualcomm, Inc.

Laurie Self is senior vice president and Counsel of Government Affairs at Qualcomm Incorporated, where she specializes in US patent policy matters at the federal and state level. Based in Washington, DC, Ms. Self also supports Qualcomm's government affairs initiatives to promote strong intellectual property rights in emerging markets. Ms. Self's particular focus is to ensure that US intellectual property laws and policies provide the necessary protections and incentives to support the company's R&D-driven business model. Prior to her arrival at Qualcomm in July 2012, Ms. Self was a partner at the law firm Covington & Burling where she chaired the firm's intellectual property practice group.

Michael S. McFalls

*Partner
Ropes & Gray LLP*

Michael McFalls represents leading companies across a variety of industries before the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and Department of Justice (DOJ) in antitrust investigations and litigation. In addition, he counsels companies on joint venture, licensing, and standard-setting questions in life sciences and IT-based industries. He has spoken, written, and testified about antitrust issues involving intellectual property, and has chaired the Computer & Internet Committee and co-chaired the Intellectual Property Committee of the ABA Antitrust Section. Mr. McFalls's non-merger work builds on his experience at the FTC, where he was attorney-advisor to Chairman Robert Pitofsky from 1998 to 2000. While there he participated in investigations, including the first investigations into Hatch-Waxman settlements and product-hopping, as well dominant-firm issues in the semiconductor industry. He also helped draft the FTC/DOJ Antitrust Guidelines for Collaborations among Competitors. In 2000, Mr. McFalls returned to a large international law firm, and in 2010 he joined Ropes and Gray LLP.
